

Postal Delivered Duties Paid (PDDP) Destination Availability

The destination country may charge customs duties, taxes or handling fees. Isle of Man Post Office does not set these charges, and they are payable in addition to postage.

For some international services, Isle of Man Post Office is introducing Postal Delivered Duties Paid (PDDP). When PDDP is available, any applicable charges are calculated and paid when you buy postage. This shows the full cost before you post the item and reduces the risk of unexpected charges for the recipient.

PDDP is currently available for selected destinations listed below.

Destinations where PDDP is NOT currently available:

If your destination is not listed above, you may still be able to use another international postal service. In these cases, customs duties, taxes or handling fees may be charged by the destination country in line with its local regulations. Any such charges are typically the responsibility of the recipient and may need to be paid before the item can be delivered. Please check service availability before posting your item.

Please note: PDDP availability and destination restrictions may change. Customers should check the latest information before sending their item.
