Isle of Man Post Office Conducts Local Business Delivery Survey

From Monday 3rd August until Friday 14th August Isle of Man Post Office (IOMPO) is conducting a survey to better understand the changing and evolving needs of local businesses and organisations with on-island delivery requirements who may not previously have considered using the postal network to support their logistics.

Covid-19 changed the way in which businesses operated, with many organisations adapting their services to offer delivery in order to meet their customers' needs. IOMPO would very much appreciate as many businesses and organisations as possible taking the time to complete the short survey, including businesses that did not offer delivery during lockdown, or have since stopped offering delivery.

Noel Travis, Interim General Manager Mails, said: "We are incredibly proud of the role our postal staff played in keeping people connected and supporting businesses during the Covid-19 pandemic. Now we want to try and understand the longer term implications of the pandemic on local delivery trends, so we can better meet the needs of our community for the long term."

All those who take part in the survey will be entered in to a draw to win a night for two at the Ramsey Park Hotel. Participants will also be asked to take part in follow up phone calls to give more insight into their organisation's delivery requirements.

The survey is available to complete online at www.iompost.com/localtolocal from Monday 3rd August until Friday 14th August.
